	Through our program we provided every CLPVC tribal member with the opportunity to acquire a reasonable technology device (tablet, laptop, or desktop computer) and software. The program also provided funding to create or extended internet services. As outlined in the original application; applicants who didn't need a device had the full amount of the funding applied towards their internet service. Children under the age of two were not eligible for devices; but their funding could be applied towards internet service within the household they reside.

CLPVC purchased each tribal member a device or reimbursed for an eligible device upon delivery of receipt up to the maximum listed in the grant narrative/budget, as well as software. 	During the course of this reporting period we had some difficulty working with some internet providers as some had difficulty accepting third party check payments or were not able to make contact new service recipients in order to set up their account. In those instances we coordinated with the service provider and the recipient to get accounts set up and payments applied appropriately.
